AMERICA MUCH WEALTHIER NOW

Marvelous Growth of the United States Is Set Forth in the Report to Congress.

IT BREAKS ALL PREVIOUS LISTS

Internal Trade, Exports and Imports Exceed in Volume Those of Any Years in the Past.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-HALE.]

Washington, Dec. 9.—The most marvelous growth in the wealth and commercial importance of the United States is revealed in the annual report of Comptroller of the Currency William Barrett Ridgely, just issued for transmission to Congress. Comptroller Ridgely says:

"Almost every year all previous records are broken in the volume of our internal trade, our exports and imports. The people of the United States have become the richest in the world, and the natural resources of the country are so great that this is sure to continue and increase for many years to come. The amount of bank clearings and deposits and the money on hand in the banks increases in every portion of the United States at a most remarkable rate."

Foreign Field is Limited.

Commenting on the splendid financial condition of the country, Comptroller Ridgely adds that in spite of the nation's prosperity it does not seem to be taking its proper position in foreign and international banking. ## H. J. CUNNINGHAM FINDS DESK ROBBED

Thief Crawled Through Narrow Aperature of Transom Opening Into His Office, Last Night.

Upon entering his office in the Jackman block this morning Herbert J. Cunningham, discovered the roller-top of his desk which he had carefully locked last evening, pried from its moorings and pushed back, with the bolt clasp and screws torn from the desk-board. A small sum of money, amounting to $3 in bills, which he had received in settlement of mutual accounts yesterday and had left there in order that the party might be duly credited in the books this morning, was missing; also several lead pencils. There was another desk in the front part of the office which had not been molested and in the stenographer's section a pocket-book left by one of the young ladies, had been overlooked. The transom over the door leading into the front room of the apartments told the story. The dust had been rubbed off the glass in a manner that plainly showed that the thief had crawled over it in his effort to gain access to the room. How he got through the narrow space and how it came to pass that the fragile transom support did not give way and let him down to the floor with a thud, were twin mysteries. But the finger marks on the white wall and about the moulding near the transom backed up the "dust print" evidence and established the theory of ways and means. It further seemed to be shown by the dust marks that the right hand of the marauder was crippled, there being only distinct traces of a thumb and the balance of the "print" being blurred. Acting Chief Brown has been informed of the full particulars and is working on the case.

FALLING OFF IN THE INTERURBAN FARES

Gross Receipts in Wisconsin Are $1,300 Less Than Last Year—License Fee is $300.

During the year ending November 30, the gross receipts of the Rockford, Janesville & Beloit Interurban Railway Co. in the state of Wisconsin were $1,344,60 short of the amount received for the preceding twelve months. The information filed with the city treasurer today shows the gross earnings to have been $51,558.

Two per cent of this amount will be paid as a license fee in the ratio of 3 to 1 to the cities and towns through which the line passes, in accordance with the mileage of track in the said cities and towns. The sum to be divided is $1,032,175, and Janesville's share will be 20,297 per cent of said amount, or $205,49. An attempt was made in last night's Gazette and likewise in the morning paper to hold up the Janesville Street Ry. Co. for a $2,979.26 fee. This of course should have read $297.93.

Receipts From Japanese Forests. Japanese progress is shown in the fact that the receipts from her state forests for timber, firewood, bamboo and other produce rose from $129,000 in 1880 to $1,204,000 in 1903, an increase of $1,075,000.

FISHERMEN DROWN ON RESCUE TRIP

Go to the Aid of Distressed Sailors and Lose Their Own Lives in Attempt.

London, Dec. 9.—While going to the assistance of the Norwegian steamer Anglia which was wrecked on the rocks near New Beggin, North Umerland, today eleven fishermen were drowned. The men put out in a fishing boat, which was swamped. One of the fishermen was saved. The Anglia's crew is safe.

STATE NOTES
The body of an unknown man was discovered on Thursday at a point in the Mississippi at La Crosse known as "Dead Man's Pocket," a place which gets its name from the large number of drowned people found there.

Racine County Surveyor Knight has begun making a survey for the Yorkville and Norway canal, which will be 8 miles long, 15 feet wide, and 10 to 15 feet deep. About 10,000 acres of land will be redeemed.

The state has rested in the trial at Fond du Lac of Xavier Parmentier of Green Bay, after the testimony of Henry Miller, the merchant, who claims to have paid the defendant, as witness, $15 "to make his assessment right."

Joseph Veragen, 19 years old, a teamster employed by the Green Bay Paper and Fiber company, received injuries that resulted in his death a few minutes later in an ambulance. A log on the top of a load was loosened and rolled on Veragen, who was standing on the ground.

Francis York, aged 18 years, of York's Landing, near Prairie du Chien, was killed, his head being crushed and his neck broken, in a runaway, near Yellow river. He and his younger brother were returning home from McGregor, when the team became frightened and ran away, throwing both out head foremost on some boulders. The younger boy was badly bruised.

A. T. Glaze, secretary of the Old Settlers' club of Fond du Lac county, and an oldtime newspaper man, fell on the steps of the public library in that city on Thursday and fractured his leg near the hip, where the hub had been broken before. Mr. Glaze is over 70 years old and has published papers in Ripon, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, and Waupaca.

SHELLS SET FIRE TO RUSSIAN SHIPS

Fight at Port Arthur Thursday Was Disastrous to Russian Marine.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-HALE.]

London, Dec. 9.—Baron Hayaschile today received the following report concerning the fighting around Port Arthur: "Thursday evening the Russian cruiser Panlada, after taking fire was held to port with stern down. Eleven shots were fired on the gunboat Gink. The cruiser Bayan took fire at eleven-thirty and was still ablaze at four this afternoon. The Russian transport Amur was hit with shells on the stern fourteen times and sank. The many shots fired greatly damaged several buildings and the arsenal."

BANKER REYNOLDS TO BE ON STAND

Holder of Mrs. Chadwick's Valuable Securities, According to Mrs. Chadwick.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-HALE.]

Cleveland, O., Dec. 9.—The Cuyahoga county grand jury this morning took up the investigation of the Chadwick case. Bunker L. Reynolds, the man whom Mrs. Chadwick said held her valuable securities, returned home and has been summoned to appear. Cashier Spear and Director Whitney of the Oberlin bank were the only witnesses on the stand at this morning's session. After their testimony was given a recess was taken.

Attorneys Carpenter and Powers were closeted at noon with Mrs. Chadwick in the counsel room of the Tombs. Before the interview Carpenter intimated if the woman insisted upon returning to Cleveland her attorneys would abandon the case, if she returned there is a question as to her sanity to be gone into. Mrs. Chadwick is anxious to return to Cleveland.

Close Watch Kept Over Prisoner—Son Visits Marshal Henkel's Office.

New York, Dec. 9.—Fearing that she might attempt to take her own life, close watch is being kept over Mrs. Chadwick in her cell in the Tombs. This morning the prisoner partook of a very light breakfast, ordered from the tombs' caterer. Then she read the morning newspapers. According to the statement of warden Flynn, Mrs. Chadwick acts like a person dazed. This morning her son Emil appeared at Marshal Henkel's office and inquired if any progress had been made in his mother's case. He intimated that if ball is not specifically procured his mother would waive any further hearing until her return to Cleveland.

LAWYER FAILED TO SECURE BAIL

Was Arrested While in Her Room in the Hotel--The Arrest Caused Much Excitement--Gave Her Age as 51.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-HALE.]

New York, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Cosette Chadwick, the woman of non-apparent millions, lodged in the Tombs Thursday night. When she was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields Thursday morning on the charge of abetting national bank officials in misappropriating the bank's funds, her bail was fixed at $15,000. Her lawyer, Philip Carpenter, spent all the afternoon and much of the evening in a fruitless search for a bondsman who would risk that amount. He even got United States Marshal Henkel to keep the prisoner in his room in the federal building until 9 o'clock p.m. in the hope of finding bail.

SUMS UP COUNTRY SCHOOL QUESTION

PRES. W. A. CLARK'S ADDRESS TO CO. TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

CONSOLIDATION OF DISTRICTS

Takes Up Question of County Supervision and Superintendent's Salary.

In one of the ablest of addresses delivered at the convention of the Rock County Teacher's Association in Beloit Saturday, December 5, President W. A. Clark, superintendent of Edgerton, summed up the condition of the schools of Rock county in the best possible manner. He discusses the condition of school supervision and protests against the reduction proposed by the county board, from $2,400 to $1,700 per annum, for superintendents of the county schools. He opens his talk with a comment on the laws of the state on the election of a state superintendent calling attention to the fact that the election of these officers takes place in the spring in order that politics exert less influence in the selection of a man.

County Supervision.

In regard to county affairs, Superintendent Clark says: "Another matter about which there is a good deal of confusion and necessarily so as it is still unsettled is that of county supervision.

As long ago as 1863 Rock county was divided into two superintendents and this division has since remained. Several attempts at consolidation have been made but nothing came of them until the meeting of the county board in January 1901 when a snap resolution was rushed through near the close of the session whose intent was to unite the two superintendents of the county under one superintendent. This same resolution essayed to fix the salary of this superintendent at $1,000 a year, allowing $300 for an assistant, $200 for postage, stationery and printing, and $200 for travelling expenses. As the salaries of each of the two superintendents had been $800, with $200 each for postage, stationery and printing, and $200 each for travelling expenses, this was an aggregate reduction of the cost of supervision from $2,400 to $1,700 per annum.

This was evidently the purpose of the promoters of this scheme for they certainly could not hope in this way to increase the efficiency of supervision for the schools of Rock county.

It has since been determined, I believe, that the county board had no authority to fix salaries at this meeting and moreover that the resolution as it was worded has no force, so at the last meeting of the county board a committee was appointed to take the matter under advisement and this committee was permitted to hold over until the next meeting in January, 1902. The questions for this committee to consider are: First, the question of consolidation; and second, the question of salary. This as I understand it, is the status of the matter at present.

Members of this committee and I believe a majority of the members of the board itself will be glad to receive any expressions of preference from teachers or others either individually or collectively.

The action in January, 1901, was evidently ill-timed and ill-considered but it upset the existing condition of things and I believe it is now the honest desire of majority of the legislators of Rock county to place the office of superintendence upon a basis that shall be for the best interest and welfare of the schools of the county.

It is now our duty as teachers to

Dr. W. A. Chase's Nerve Pills.

The world is full of women whose daily life is one long struggle against diseases peculiar to their sex—whose days and nights are full of quiet, patient suffering. The head the seat of pain and pressure—the result of nerve depression and physical weakness brought on by uterine or ovarian trouble—the nerves on edge—inclined to laugh or cry at anything—an ever present dragging in the back, hips and limbs—a feeling of utter weariness—lassitude and despondency. To these people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are of incomparable value, having as they do the power to rebuild, to reinvigorate and resupply every organ, every nerve, every muscle with the lost energy, and to insure a complete return to health, strength and vigor again.

Mrs. John Bailey of Jackson St., Penn Yan, N. Y., says:

I was told that Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills were a great nerve medicine, and as I needed one badly, I got a box. My nerves were very weak—I lacked ambition and strength and my heart action was very weak. I used the pills as directed and they made my nerves quiet and steady—the heart action strong and regular and the appetite good, my sleep became restful and I feel altogether like another person. I think as a remedy for female complaints as well, they are grand, curing the headaches and heavy, dragging feeling rapidly and easily—this I know from experience, and I am glad to recommend them." Again, although the territory to be investigate and consider the matter and after deciding our own preference to communicate this to some member of the county board with our reasons for our decision.

As to the question of consolidation the plan is not without its advantages, some of which I will briefly mention. First. One standard of certificate will obtain throughout the country which may not always be true under the present system. Second. A teacher might go from one part of the county to another without being obliged to secure pay for a transfer of certificate. Third. One mind would direct the affairs of the whole county thus securing directness, efficiency and economy in many ways not possible under the present system. But as to whether we have one superintendent or two I am not so greatly concerned.

The point that we as teachers, having at heart the interests of the schools of the county, should contend for and contend for urgently, persistently and with all the arguments at our command is that there must be no reduction in the total amount expended for supervision.

A brief review of the history of this office shows that for nearly forty years the salary has remained unchanged while during that time, the salaries of practically all the other county officers have been increased.

From year to year additional laws have been passed increasing the responsibilities and duties of the county superintendent until now the work of the office is probably more than double what it was twenty-five years ago.

In spite of this fact and the fact that the legal requirements for this office are more exacting than for any other county office the salary of this office which was less than the average salary for other county offices to begin with has remained without increase while others have been increased far beyond it. It would seem, therefore, that instead of a reduction being made in the amount expended for school supervision an increase would be more logical and just.

It may be asked perhaps, why we should concern ourselves with the salary of county superintendents. There are many reasons.

County superintendents are of necessity of our profession. Whatever elevates and strengthens the work of supervision has an elevating effect on the work of every teacher in the county. Whatever cheapens the office has the opposite effect.

The value of efficient and systematic supervision is recognized in all schools out apparently least in the ones that need it most, the district schools. The independent districts of Janesville and Beloit with an assessed valuation of thirteen million and about one hundred forty teachers pay nearly twice as much for supervision as the rest of the county with an assessed valuation of forty-one millions and two hundred thirty teachers. And now it is proposed to still further reduce, the comparatively small amount expended for county supervision.

Certainly the promoters of this movement could have taken little thought as to the needs of the common schools of the county. Why should they not have just as much and just as good supervision as the city schools? As I said before, they need it more and the reason is apparent. The average term of service of teachers in district schools is about three years. What becomes of them at the end of that time you know as well as I, but whatever the reason the fact remains, that about one-third of the teachers in district schools are new to the work each year. If they are to accomplish the most for themselves and for their pupils they must have careful and intelligent supervision.

Now let us examine the proposed scheme and see if it will give to these schools and these teachers the increased supervision they need. An objection to the plan of consolidation arises right here. How often can one visit two hundred twenty-seven schools scattered over a wide area even if he give all his time to it, which of course he cannot? Figure on a basis of four schools a day and see if he can visit often enough to follow up effectively his criticisms or suggestions to individual teachers.

The two able men who are now dividing this work between them cannot begin to accomplish what they would like to do in this way.

Compare the large number of schools scattered over a wide area with the much smaller number of schools within the comparatively limited area of the cities of Janesville and Beloit.

The school boards of these two cities argue that because of the comparative ease with which supervision can be carried on they ought to get it done cheaply. Not a bit of it. As we know they are willing to pay liberal salaries in order to secure the best talent obtainable for this purpose.

Under the plan of consolidation it would seem that if one man is to control the educational affairs of so rich and populous a county as ours his salary ought to rank with at least the average salary of principals of the various systems of city schools in the county and this if I am correctly informed is about $1,500 a year. Under the proposed plan of consolidation however the salary of the superintendent is fixed at $1,000. To make it worse he is to be allowed but $300 for a deputy. This deputy is required by law to have at least a county first grade certificate. Such a person moreover to be of any real service must be a person of long and successful experience, capable of supervising and directing the work of others, for as I have before pointed out, for one superintendent alone to effectively supervise all the schools of the county is a physical impossibility. Such a deputy could not be obtained for $300 nor for twice $300 per year. To secure a competent deputy therefore the superintendent must draw upon his already insufficient salary. Nor can he hope to make it up out of his postage stamp money for where $300 has been the regular allowance for postage, and stationery, etc., but $200 is allowed under the present plan notwithstanding the fact that the market price of postage stamp remains firm and bargains in this commodity are hard to find.

Again, although the territory to be covered is just as large as ever the amount for travelling expenses has been reduced from $400 to $200 per annum.

If one person is to be at the head of all the educational affairs of the county he should be a man of high scholarship, professional training, and successful experience; in other words, a capable man.

The proposed salary is not such as to invite capable men. It means those with the most meager qualifications who can barely qualify under the law will be the aspirants for the office.

That means poorer service to the county and less progress in education.

In short, the whole effect of the proposed plan should it go into effect, would be to cheapen and degrade the office of supervisor of the common schools and with it the schools themselves to which a large number of us look for our employment.

It ought not to be difficult to lead the taxpayers to see that from their point of view it is poor economy to cheapen and degrade the cause of education among the common people.

If a taxpayer has children to educate there is no part of his tax that brings him more immediate return than this school tax. A difference of a few hundred dollars in the educational budget of the county will make but a few cents difference in his personal taxes but it may mean all the difference between good and poor educational advantages for his children in whose welfare he should be interested above all things else. If he has no children in whose education he is interested he should realize that as a matter of public economy it is a great deal cheaper to give the boys and girls of today an education that will make them self-respecting, self-supporting, and useful members of society than to support them later as public charges. More money for the public schools would mean a more than compensating reduction in the cost of supporting reformatories, houses of correction, jails and penitentiaries. Much as the enemies of education may prate about criminals in the land will bear me out when I say that criminals as a class are not educated but quite the reverse.

No one will dispute with me about the importance of the cause of education. The trouble is, as Supt. Hemingway has so aptly put it, "So far as the need of it goes, as people usually do it, they place it first. So far as paying for it goes, they place it last."

The work of education is just as important as any other branch of public service and its representatives whether in state or county should be placed second to none either in dignity or salary.

Educational affairs in the county are making gratifying progress under the present administration. Higher standards of scholarship both in the work of the schools and in the preparation of teachers are being insisted on and being realized. There is a marked improvement in the matter of buildings and equipment throughout the county; sometimes I presume as Justice Marshall said of the constitution, "wring from the grinding necessities of a reluctant people, but nevertheless they are coming to pass."

We hope, however, that the superintendents have not hurt their chances of re-election by this wringing process.

Last but not least I will mention a fact that augurs great things for the schools of our country and that is that teachers' wages are advancing.

Many districts have already raised the salaries for experienced teachers. This is as it should be for the labor in the field of philanthropy, of religion, or of education is as worthy of his hire as the laborer in any other field. Teachers are cheerfully meeting the advanced examination requirements for they realize that this means better service for their employers and better salaries for themselves.

With the present bright outlook for the future we should actively and earnestly oppose any movement looking toward retrenchment. The plan proposed at the January session of the county board was a blow at the educational work of our county as efficient work in this line as it is now receiving. If we cannot have a change for the better let us have a none at all.

Another matter upon which teachers should inform themselves and strive to enlighten the public in general is the matter of a county training school for teachers.

Under the law authorizing these schools, first passed in 1859 and amended in 1901 the state pays half the running expenses of such a school unless such amount exceed $2500.

The object of such schools is to provide trained teachers for the rural schools. It being the fact that practically the total output of the state normal schools is absorbed by city and village schools.

Ten counties have already taken advantage of this offer but strange to say these are nearly all northern counties.

The southern counties which pay by far the larger portion of the state tax are strangely apathetic.

An effort to establish one in Rock was defeated largely by the representatives of sections that such a school would benefit most. If it is worth while to have trained teachers for the city schools why not for the country schools as well?

Certainly the difficulties there to be overcome require just as much skill and the boys and girls are just as worthy of skillful teaching.

In no county where such a school has been established has it proved a failure. It has proved a benefit to all concerned; to the public in the way of better teaching and to the teachers. In the way of better wages. Can't we induce the solons of our county to put it at the head of the southern counties of the state in establishing such a school?

Other laws upon which teachers should be informed but which time will not permit me to discuss at length are the compulsory education law and the law authorizing school boards to close their schools and arrange for the transportation of pupils to neighboring schools and the payment of their tuition therein. This is a plan which it seems to me should appeal to every thoughtful person as wise and economical. Where tried it has proved highly satisfactory.

Again, although the territory to be schools there is a great reduction in the expenditure for buildings, heating and other running expenses. More money is thus available for books, apparatus, and better teaching without an increase in the aggregate expenses.

Moreover the enthusiasm and spirit of corps engendered by larger numbers lends an attraction and an interest to school life which coupled with better instruction under more favorable conditions cannot help but make for the better mental training of the pupils of a district, without that dreaded accompaniment of increase in taxes.

By taking advantage of this law, it ought to be possible to establish many more state graded schools. Add to this the provision making the title of non-resident pupils in free high schools payable by the districts from which they come and we have a straight free highway of education open to the poorest boy or girl from the remotest back-country district to and through the university thus realizing in our beloved state the high ideal of the founders of our free public school system, the complete democracy of learning.

Teachers, are we awake to the great advancement being made along educational lines in our state? Are we awake to the possibilities for the future? Are we ready and willing to take a part in helping along this march of progress?

Are we willing to see Rock county fall behind other counties in this march? Let us not look upon our work here as merely temporary but make this our chosen field and labor to develop the educational possibilities of our county.

I do not believe that we should be backward in entertaining nor timid in expressing our honest opinions about matters so vitally concern our high calling and the cause of education to which our work is devoted. We must learn to stand out for the rights of the boys and girls whose preparation for future usefulness and happiness is so largely entrusted to our care. We must strive to bring about those things which we believe to be for the betterment of our schools, not by scholastic nor wire pulling necessarily, but by that means which lies nearest at hand, by education. It is our peculiar province to educate but our efforts need not be confined to the school room. The public in general requires educating as to the aims, the work, and the needs of our schools.

Whatever lack of support the cause of education may suffer is due, I believe, not so much to unwillingness to give to schools and teachers their just dues as to indifference and lack of appreciation of their needs.

Once get the people to believe that larger expenditures for supervision, higher salaries for teachers, a county training school, and consolidating of small schools are really necessary to the highest efficiency of our schools and the means will be forthcoming.

Let us then labor together fearlessly and earnestly, unaided by opposition, and uncheckered by temporary defeat and discouragement to make Rock county, already the banner county in more ways than one, the banner county in still another way, and that the banner county educationally.

CHRISTMAS TURKEYS TO PROBABLY BE CHEAPER

Not Thought That the Price Will Be As High As at Thanksgiving.

What are prospects for turkeys for Christmas is the question that is first in the minds of many just at present. According to the representative of one of the large Chicago shipping companies there is a marked improvement in the matter of administration. Higher standards of scholarship both in the work of the schools and in the preparation of teachers are being insisted on and being realized. There is a marked improvement in the matter of buildings and equipment throughout the county; sometimes I presume as Justice Marshall said of the constitution, "wring from the grinding necessities of a reluctant people, but nevertheless they are coming to pass."

On Saturday, December 31st, The Gazette will publish a resume of the past year in such a shape that it will be well worth keeping for reference for future years. Births, deaths, accidents, fires and all the news that goes to make up each day's work will be carefully recorded and tabulated in such a form it will be easy to refer to. This and the cuts that will accompany the articles will make a most interesting paper and one which should be sent to old residents of the city who want news of former friends as well as to friends who have visited here.

VAN HISE WILL NOT GIVE UP NOW

President Will Stand Pat on Coach Proposition—Students with Him.

Madison, Wis.—Friction is fast developing between President Van Hise and the board of directors of the Wisconsin University Athletic association. A reply from Coach Yost of Michigan to a proposition to bring him to Madison is anxiously awaited. Nearly all the members of the Badger football team have made public a signed statement siding with Assistant Coach Cochems as against Head Coach Curtis.

These are the elements of the remarkable athletic situation at Madison, making it of absorbing interest. President Van Hise has been working with his recently created student advisory committee and with the alumni associations of Chicago and Milwaukee to revise the athletic system and select the coaches of the football and track teams and the manager of all the athletic teams. He certainly has the whip hand and it is doubtful whether any deviation from his suggested plan will be made. The alumni associations of Chicago and Milwaukee have met and declared for a large alumni and student committee to select the coaches and manager. The only thing that may change this will be the election of these officials at once by the present board of directors. It is learned that a definite proposition was sent to Yost of Michigan, but he has not answered. The salary offered him is not known except that it is as much or more than $3,500 a year. E. J. Vanderboom, the crack Wisconsin halfback and president of the athletic board, says the men to be chosen by the board are known to him, that the board has the power to make contracts, exclusively, and that the board will act at once. He adds that it makes no difference whether the president has other plans.

Since the close of the football season a controversy has been waged between Coaches Curtis and Cochems and their friends over the credit for giving Chicago a hard game Thanksgiving day. Curtis adulated for a week after the drubbing by Minnesota. Cochems was given charge and changed the team and play throughout. Cochems and his friends claimed for him the credit of scoring two touchdowns on Chicago. Curtis claimed the plays used effectively against Chicago were adopted from the Minnesota style and Dr. Williams should have the credit. Now all the members of the team announce in a signed statement that Cochems invented the formations that gained ground against Stagg's team.

Thus the disastrous football season is tearing up things at Madison.

Jr. Vice Pres.—Mrs. Carrie Glenn. Chaplain—Mrs. Elizabeth Trumble. Conductor—Mrs. Anna Appleby. Treasurer—Miss Ella L. Wills. Guard—Mrs. Annie Morse.

First delegate to the department convention to be held at La Crosse—Mrs. Ella Gifford.

Second delegate—Mrs. Mary Dunn.

King's Daughter Fair Well Patronized

The King's Daughters of the Baptist church sale and supper was a great success and was liberally patronized. Many attractive booths and an excellent supper, large crowds of people found the parlors of the Baptist church a very attractive place. Wednesday afternoon, the occasion being the annual Christmas sale and supper. The chairman of each booth was appointed one year ago by the president of the circle, Mrs. J. H. Huntress. The novelty booth was a most beautiful one in light green and white. The chairman was Mrs. Woodward, assisted by Miss Wright. The doll booth was another center of attraction, decorated in blue and white, the chairman being Mrs. W. F. Hayes, assisted by Mrs. Pickering and Mrs. Catchpole. The apron booth was also popular, the booth being prettily decorated in red and white. The chairman was Mrs. Howland, assisted by Mrs. Vaughan. The handkerchief booth, which was beautiful in pure white, was in charge of Chairman Mrs. Burdick, assisted by Mrs. W. E. Clinton. The sofa pillow and bag booth was uniquely decorated with red, white and blue, the chairman being Mrs. Selmer and Mrs. C. Spencer. The Juniors' was the booth which occupied the center of the room, from which they disposed of an immense amount of candy and other tempting dainties. The booth was decorated in red and yellow and was the most beautiful. The president, Miss Mary Barker, with her little Japs, presided. From 5 to 7 an elegant supper was served, the menu being especially fine. It was one of the best church suppers ever given in the city and both supper and sale were generously patronized. The King's Daughters certainly have reason to congratulate themselves on their success. They prepared for one hundred and fifty and could have served to more but the food gave out. The supper was served under the supervision of Mrs. Louise Bowerman and Mrs. J. H. Huntress, the table being presided over by Mrs. F. Moses, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. C. Wright, Mrs. Geo. Powell, Mrs. C. Anderson, Mrs. Baldwin, Mrs. Shekey. Tickets were sold by A. C. Campbell and tickets collected at table by Mrs. F. Welch.

No Extra Session.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Prospects of an extra session of Congress in the spring to consider changes in the tariff went glimmering and were finally extinguished when it was announced that the President at this time is disinclined to bring Congress together on this subject before next fall, and probably not then. The King's Daughters certainly have reason to congratulate themselves on their success. They prepared for one hundred and fifty and could have served to more but the food gave out. The supper was served under the supervision of Mrs. Louise Bowerman and Mrs. J. H. Huntress, the table being presided over by Mrs. F. Moses, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. C. Wright, Mrs. Geo. Powell, Mrs. C. W. H. APPLEBY'S PLUCKY ACT STOPPED A RUNAWAY
Seized Bridle of Wild Quadruped and Was Dragged a Block on Milwaukee Street.
While W. H. Appleby was conversing with friends in front of Bort, Bell & Co.'s store at five o'clock yesterday afternoon, there came the roar and clatter of a runaway horse dragging it to buggy in its wild scramble down East Milwaukee street. As the horse and vehicle struck the bridge the former sheriff flung himself into the street and seizing the horse by the bridle was dragged to River street before the infuriated animal could be stopped. By some miracle the one human actor in this little drama escaped serious injury.
DEEP WATERWAY
Congress May Make Appropriation for Channel to the Mississippi.
Washington, Dec. 9.—Special efforts are being made to get into congress before the river and harbor bill is brought before the house the report of the survey for a deep waterway between the great lakes and the Mississippi river. The survey has been completed and the engineers at Chicago are working upon the report. If it reaches congress in time an item will be incorporated in the river and harbor bill making an appropriation for the commencement of the great work, which means so much to the commerce of the middle West.
An appropriation of $400,000 will be asked this session for continuing the improvements upon the Calumet river. Authority will be asked also to acquire a strip of land from the forks of the river to Hammond, so that the government may continue improvements to that place when the rapid growth of South Chicago makes it necessary.

Moline probably will be given an appropriation of $38,000 for the construction of a lock to give the city a river harbor.

There is some conflict as to whether further improvement of the Hennepin canal is justifiable. President Gross of the Water Power company of Sterling and Rock Falls says the $7,000,000 already expended upon the canal has been wasted, and that Gen. McKenzie, chief of engineers, will not recommend any further expenditures. On the other hand, the Illinois congressmen are working to secure an allowance for the completion of the canal.

Japan Accepts Invitation.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Japan has accepted the American government's invitation to participate in a second peace conference at The Hague, provided the rulings of the conference do not affect the present conflict.

Cable to Panama.

Washington, Dec. 9.—To connect the canal zone on the Isthmus of Panama with the United States by cable is the purpose of a bill introduced by Representative Wagner of Pennsylvania. Total cost is fixed at $2,000,000.

Alaskan Boundary.

Washington, Dec. 9.—A final settlement of the Alaskan boundary line has been reached. There was a small section of this boundary which was not determined by the Alaskan boundary commission at its meeting in London for the reason that it never had been surveyed. Mr. Tiltman, president of the coast geodetic survey, and Mr. King of the Canadian government, were appointed a special commission to complete this work, which has been done.

Burton to Guard Finances.

Washington, Dec. 9.—It is believed that Representative Burton of Cleveland, Ohio, at present chairman of the Rivers and Harbors committee of the house, will be the chairman of the Appropriations committee in the next house.

Eight Years for President.

Washington, Dec. 9.—A joint resolution providing for the election of the President and Vice President for a term of eight years and senators by the people for terms of the same length and representatives in Congress for terms of four years was introduced by Representative Norris (Neb.).

No Extra Session.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Prospects of an extra session of Congress in the spring to consider changes in the tariff went glimmering and were finally extinguished when it was announced that the President at this time is disinclined to bring Congress together on this subject before next fall, and probably not then.

THE LEWIS AND CLARK FAIR.

Close upon the heels of the World's Fair at St. Louis will come another, but less ambitious, exhibition of the same sort in this country. Portland, Ore., is about to celebrate an event of much importance to the North Pacific Coast, the arrival there of Lewis and Clark, two of the earliest explorers of that region. Their overland journey thither began in 1804, and was finished the following year. For the centennial show which is being organized in their honor, and which will be formally opened next May, the preparations are well advanced. An area less extensive than that required at St. Louis is to be occupied, and the buildings will be fewer in number and less imposing in dimensions. Nevertheless, several of the larger structures are said to be so near completion that the removal of exhibits from St. Louis thereto is now practicable. To encourage such a transfer the railroads have made a special freight tariff, which went into effect on December 1. Co-operation of the national and a number of State governments—that of Massachusetts among them—is assured, and the projectors of the undertaking are anticipating a large measure of success.

The landing of Captain Robert Gray, of Boston, at the mouth of the Columbian River, in 1792, was not without influence on history. His explorations furnished the basis of a claim to the adjacent territory by the United States. In determining whether Washington or London should rule the territory, Gray's venture may have gone further than the more dangerous and difficult services of Lewis and Clark. The mission of the latter, however, was significant in several ways. It grew out of the Louisiana Purchase, and was inspired by Jefferson's desire to find a highway through the newly acquired possessions to the ocean which laved the western shores of the continent. At that time California did not belong to this country, and an outlet was sought further north. Leaving Fort Mandan, on the upper Missouri, in April, 1805, Lewis and Clark endured great privations while crossing the Rockies and examining the Columbia, and they narrowly escaped starvation. There is no probability that their heroism will be overrated by the local historian. The States that lie, respectively, on the northern and southern sides of that mighty stream owe much of their development to these men.

Neither Washington nor Oregon has a population at all comparable with that of California. The first reported a little over 500,000 residents in 1900, the second something less, and the third nearly 1,500,000. San Francisco ranked ninth among the cities of the United States in the last census year. It then had a population of 342,000, while Portland claimed scarcely more than 90,000 and Seattle only about 80,000. In point of fertility and scenery, the northern states of the Pacific coast closely rival their southern neighbor. Their production of fruit, wheat and timber is simply magnificent, and the salmon fisheries of the Columbia are probably without an equal anywhere in the world. California, however, has a more attractive climate, especially in winter, and her growth was wonderfully stimulated by the discovery of gold there half a century ago. But for that help it is doubtful whether she would have enjoyed greater prosperity than Oregon or Washington. Even yet the resources of the latter two have been utilized imperfectly. Both have a grand future before them.

The interval of time which will elapse between the St. Louis and Portland fairs is so short that the one which is to be held next year is placed at a disadvantage. It cannot hope to rival the one just ended. Perhaps it will be national rather than international in scope. All the same it will perform many useful functions. One of these is that it will reveal the kind of stuff which the men are made who are shaping the destiny of the North Pacific Coast.

Have you noticed that something it might have occurred to some bankers less astute than Beckwith that Andrew Carnegie would be a good man to consult as to the advisability of endorsing notes bearing the Carnegie signature.

Another notable feature of President Roosevelt's message is that he has declined to assert the immemorial presidential prerogative of committing mayhem on the infinitive verb.

President Roosevelt recommends a public accounting for campaign funds. The president does not seem to care whether the politicians love him or not.

Now a doctor has discovered that you can take the gold cure for pneumonia if your batting average is so low you do not require the cure for anything else.

If those Ohio bank officials attempt to justify themselves by saying they broke the banking laws to please a lady the explanation will not go with the government.

Managers of railroads should put on their specs and read very carefully what the president's message has to say about railway accidents.

In comparison with Gov. Vardaman of Mississippi Ben Tillman may be regarded as a combination of Lord Chesterfield and Bertie Brunner.

Congress will make a great hit with the people if it lives up to the recommendations of the president's message on corporation abuses.

Excellent editorial judgment is shown by the president in his selection of topics calculated to make a message breezy and attractive.

Always happens whenever the truth about the Chadwick case is just going to be revealed?

New York is having another six-day bicycle race. Let us hope that Chicago has been broken of the habit.

Possibly what Mrs. Chadwick's health needs is a trip to some country where the extradition laws are defective.

In Mexico the "unwritten law" as to presidential succession is that Diaz is to have as many terms as he pleases.

Mme. Humbert of France must feel now that her work was rather coarse as compared with that of Mrs. Chadwick.

Some genius might add materially to the festivities of the season by inventing an asbestos whisker for Santa Claus.

Is the fact that a man was judge of election in Denver prima facie evidence that he is guilty?

Bank President Beckwith seems to have led the simple life in more senses than one.

Wall street recognizes in Mrs. Chadwick a dangerous rival.

PRESS COMMENT

Madison Journal: Perhaps, a good way to clear up the athletic situation at the university would be to whitewash the state.

Exchange: King Frederick Augustus of Saxony on his ascension to the throne proclaimed an amnesty for all minor offenses except that of cruelty to animals.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The University of Chicago has discarded the Doxology. Some fine day the thinking public will discard the University of Chicago.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The Philadelphia Inquirer, after deep cogitation, thinks Mrs. Chadwick hypnotized them all by her beauty. But the portraits, man, the portraits!

Oshkosh Northwestern: Perhaps Mr. Carnegie is right when he says he never signed those notes for Mrs. Chadwick, but at the same time the public is inclined to be a trifle suspicious regarding his claim that he never saw or even heard of her before.

Evening Wisconsin: It is not yet recognized whom the state administration prefers for senator. Many say that Isaac Stephenson will be the coming man; others that it will be Cooper, Esch or Webb. Senator Quarles will have a compact body of warm supporters in the legislature.

Washington Post: It may be just coincidence that the report that the administration is going to make a determined effort to eliminate graft is published in the same column with a prediction that there will be no river and harbor legislation at this session.

Hudson Star-Times: The St. Louis exposition is pronounced an unprecedented success although financially it went into the hole to the tune of about $25,000,000. It is fortunate that all successes are not measured by all people from the dollar standpoint.

Manitowoc Herald: Green Bay papers complain that theatrical attractions are not patronized. The city has a modern opera house and gets the best going but the management is becoming discouraged. Better move the opera house to Manitowoc. When this city will give $300 to see the "Wizard of Oz," without scenery, it is reasonable to believe that with a modern house, the city would give good support.

Grant County Herald: After waiting until conscience nearly burned a hole through his vest, Isaac Stephenson, the half-breed millionaire lumberman of Marinette, has published a letter in which he declares that the report that he contributed $22,000 to elect Senator John C. Spooner to the senate in 1885 is utterly false, and is calculated to do injustice to Senator Spooner.

Chicago Inter Ocean: If William J. Bryan or Professor Graham Taylor or Miss Jane Addams—all disciples of Tolstol—had been asked if he would favor the zemstvo agitation for constitutional government in Russia they unquestionably would have answered "Yes." However, Count Tolstol, being a Russian as well as a Christian Socialist, shares the views of the Russian aristocracy that a demand for constitutional government for Russia under present conditions is obstructive of real progress. In other words, the greatest of Russian reformers believe that constitutional government is no cure for the evils that afflict mankind in Russia. Therefore, he regards the assumption on the part of the zemstvos that a constitutional form of government will remedy existing evils in Russia as "a pernicious illusion" and "an obstacle in the path of progress." It appears from this declaration that Count Tolstol, in the presentation of his realistic pictures of Russian life in contrast with a lofty idealism, has not been laboring, as thousands have supposed, for a change in the form of government of the Russian empire, not for the abolition of autocracy and the substitution of democracy, but for the betterment of individual souls. It appears also that Count Tolstol, born and bred a Russian aristocrat, has little faith in such constitutional government as exists in America, Germany, England, and France.

Mr. J. C. Harlow, the popular and efficient veteran chief of U. S. post-office on wheels, between Chicago and St. Paul returned from California last evening, where he spent a month, a well earned vacation. While in the land of gold and no impossibilities, his experience in sight seeing gave him much of the restful, so much needed from the strenuous duties of the mail service, yet he felt at times an incapacity of endurance in the new and interesting sights everywhere to behold.

UNIQUE CLUB OF FOREIGN PEOPLE

STUDENTS AT UNIVERSITY ORGANIZE NOVEL ASSOCIATION.

MEMBERS FROM ALL PARTS

Many Different Nations Are Represented in the Club's Membership.

Special to The Gazette.

Madison, Wis.—One of the unique institutions at the University of Wisconsin is the International club, an organization which consists of the students from foreign countries who are studying at the university. The club, which has enjoyed a successful existence for the past two years, is the only one of its kind in the country. There are some twenty foreign students now in attendance at the university, most of whom are identified with the club, and thirteen foreign countries are represented in its membership.

The club was organized in 1902, by Mr. Hoyvan Hapopian, a talented young Armenian, who was graduated from the University of Wisconsin last June and is at present studying law at Harvard. Great difficulty was encountered in securing the aid and cooperation of the foreign students, as they did not fully understand and appreciate its value, but by the end of the first semester of 1902, the purpose became more generally known and the International club was successfully established on a firm basis. Mr. Hapopian was its first president, and under his guidance the club prospered; its membership embraced almost all the foreign students in the university, and its meetings were well attended and decidedly interesting.

The object of the club has been to overcome the difficulties that the foreign students encounter in a strange country. When a foreign student enters the university, he usually knows very few of his classmates, and often finds difficulty in making acquaintance on account of an imperfect knowledge of the English language. The International club brings the foreign students together, and makes them acquainted with each other and with the American students. These latter may not, by the constitution, exceed thirty per cent of the total membership, in order that the foreign students may always be the preponderating element.

The club meets on the first two Saturdays of every month in the music lecture room of Library Hall. Occasionally open meetings are held, when topics of special interest are discussed. The regular meetings of the club are given over to the discussion of questions of international interest. There are usually two members on the program, each of whom speaks on his chosen subject for twenty or twenty-five minutes. After each number, a general informal discussion ensues, in which all the members join. Interesting questions which have been discussed recently are, The Revolutionary Movement in Russia, Settlement Work in the United States and Abroad, The Position of Woman in Japan, Europe and America, The Movement Toward Government Ownership of Railroads.

Occasionally a special program is provided for what is called a "social meeting." At these social meetings, the literary part of the program is abandoned, and the evening is given over to playing games illustrating the customs of the different countries, to singing the different national songs, and enjoying refreshments, which are supposed to be characteristic of the countries of those members who constitute the refreshment committee. These meetings are not infrequently held in the homes of university professors, some of whom have manifested great interest in the club. One of the recent social meetings was made extremely interesting by a Japanese sword dance, executed by two of the Japanese members of the club.

Thus far this year, only a temporary organization has been effected, and officers have not yet been regularly elected. The temporary officers of the club are: President, Max Leeb; secretary, Miss Sigrid Fjordlien; treasurer, William Milne. Among those who are associated with the organization are: Miss Sigrid Fjordlien, Tor Strand, Norway; Wm. Milne, Scotland; Albert Clark, Jr., Honolulu; W. F. Terrazas, Puebla, Mexico; Agustin Aleman, Lorenzo Davila, Chas. E. Boett, Argentine Republic; Elias Tolokin, Wm. Leiferzon, Russia; Zenki Oishi, Hidzco Tan, Goro Nakayama, Kyugoro Ishizawa, Yasu Sensui, Japan; Miss Ballu, France; Miss Tomlinson, England; Miss McCutcheon, Canada; Alan Delgado, Altamont Delgado, Robert Henriquez, Jamaica; Miss Walker, Miss Manning, P. N. Schram, M. Leeb, United States. In all there are thirteen different nations represented.

The International club of the University of Wisconsin is, so far as known, a unique organization, the only one of its kind in the United States. So successful has the local organization been and so enthusiastic are its members that several of those who have gone elsewhere to continue their studies are attempting to organize similar clubs in other institutions. Mr. Hoyvan Hapopian, at Harvard, is endeavoring to establish a similar club there, and Mr. Taniguchi, one of the Japanese members of the club of last year, who is at present at the University of Chicago, is undertaking to start a movement for a club in that university.

This broadening influence of the International club, both on foreign and native students, is remarkable. The foreigners in the informal discussions are aided in securing a mastery of the English language, and they are not slow to take advantage of the opportunity for expression. The interchange of ideas, in the discussion of questions from thirteen different standpoints, though often amusing, as can easily be imagined, is always instructive.

NEW INDUSTRY SEEKS A SITE

Chance for Janesville Business Men to Investigate the Project.

Officers of the Janesville Business Men's association are looking for a Janesville business man with capital to invest and business ability to manage a growing industry that wishes to settle here. It appears to be a good proposition and one which would add another factory to the present list now located in the city. It comes from Chicago where it has grown out of its present location and now seeks a location in Janesville. It manufactures a line of goods for which there is a growing demand and has orders ahead for several months work. It would incorporate under the laws of Wisconsin for twenty-five thousand dollars and would be willing to allow the Janesville stockholders to have a controlling interest on the board of directors. What the Business Men's association now wants is a man with capital who would like to invest and manage his own plant. Information on this subject can be obtained by those interested in such a project, from the secretary of the association, A. E. Bingham, at the Bower City

BEET FEEDING IS A NEW INDUSTRY

IS AN IMPORTANT ITEM IN COLORADO TODAY.

FEEDING PULP TO ANIMALS

Might Be Done in Janesville with Refuse From Big Factory Here.

Following is a clipping from a western paper which describes the new pulp feeding industry that has sprung up in Colorado where the beet sugar mills are local. It should interest Janesville people as the same means are at hand as in the west:

New Industry

"A new industry has developed in Fort Collins, that of stock feeding. The North Bluff street has been converted into a permanent home for the Janesville Sugar Mill Co. Although Grisley & Croft, the owners, have been in possession of the business for only half a year the patronage has increased to an extent which necessitated larger and better equipped quarters. The new building is supplied with all the modern machinery and pasteurizing devices found in the larger cities of the country. The milk is received from the dairies and is put to several tests as to purity and richness, after which it is treated to a process which destroys any possible typhoid tubercular or diphteritic germs. The milk is then sealed in sterilized bottles and ready for the consumer. A four-wagon delivery service is maintained and milk and cream is retailed at their building, 22 N. Bluff street, and telephone orders are filled. Besides the purity of their product the butter fat or richness is shown to be considerable above the average. This company's schedule of prices is the same as in force among other local milk dealers. Visitors are always welcome at their plant.

Very Profitable

"It has been demonstrated, not only as a result of the most careful experiments by experts but as a result of actual experience on the part of feeders, that the feeding of sugar beet pulp for fattening purposes is not only profitable but more so than the feeding of grain. During the spring and summer several hundred head of cattle were fattened on the pulp in the corrals belonging to the factory, and in every instance the experiment was successful and profitable.

Grow Heavier

"The increase in weight is as great as in grain fed animals and while the shrinkage in dressing is slightly greater the meat is just as good. A comparison of the relative increase, shrinkage, and cost per cwt. of pulp and grain fed cattle, obtained in experiments conducted by Prof. Carlyle of the agricultural college and other experts, has been widely published.

Many Thousand

"This fall more than 3,000 beves and about 30,000 sheep are being fed on beet pulp and alfalfa at the feeding grounds. The pulp is sold for 35 cents a ton. The cattle are fed 120 pounds and the lambs fifteen pounds per day of pulp and one-tenth the same quantities of alfalfa. In most cases five or six pounds of molasses are mixed with pulp in feeding, but in no instance is a pound of grain fed.

Over the Tops

"Many feeders run their cattle or sheep over the harvest beet tops, which sell for $2 and $3 per acre, before taking them to the pulp feeding pens. Even without this, however, the animals, after the first day or two crowd and push one another in their efforts to get their share of pulp at the feeding time. One peculiarity in feeding the moist pulp is that sheep drink little or no water. Not more than a dozen out of 1,000 go to water during the day, the feed seeming to contain sufficient moisture to satisfy them. Feeders find it advisable to dehorn the cattle before putting them in close corrals."

LITTLE "PAT" GILKEY AN "AD" FOR BREAKFAST FOOD

Pictures of Infant Son of Former Alderman Appear in January Magazines.

On the illuminated covers of the magazines for January will be noticed an advertisement for a well known breakfast food depicting a smiling colored chef and a series of six pictures of a little boy with curly hair in various moods between the smiling and the doleful. Mrs. W. F. Cody today received a letter from her brother, former Alderman H. S. Gilkey of Minneapolis, stating that the original of these pictures was his little son "Pat" who was born on St. Patrick's day several years ago.

NEWS ABOUT TOWN

Architect Visiting Here: W. E. Rowson of the firm of James Rowson & Son, Iowa City, Iowa, who built the city hall in Janesville, is here on a visit. The concern has recently built a court house at Albia, Ia., costing $1,000; a public library at Des Moines costing $300,000; and a school at Davenport involving an outlay of $50,000.

May Be Dark-Horse: John Donahue, former chief of police of Sioux Falls, S. D., and more recently engaged in the hotel and saloon business in Janesville, is a visitor in the city. It is suggested that he may be the "dark-horse" that citizens have been anticipating in the marshaling race.

Party at Baumann's: A score or more of friends enjoyed a little card party at the home of W. J. Baumann last evening. High King was played and a pleasant evening was passed by all.

In Justice Court: In Justice Reed's court today E. W. Lowell secured a judgment for $2 and costs amounting to $1.96 against Frank Lynch for the amount due on the purchase price of a stove. The action of Ford & Son vs. Ray Turner to recover $11.02 from Ray Turner by garnishee the Wisconsin Telephone Co. was settled out of court.

At William Smith's: The lecture of Miss Clara Colby on "Municipal Ownership in Glasgow" will be delivered at the residence of Mr. William Smith, No. 103 North First street, instead of the Caledonian room. Miss Colby talked yesterday afternoon before the Atheneum class on "The Fascinating Story of Old Louisiana."

A carload of Christmas goods now on hand.

Another carload due to arrive tomorrow.

Our prices for the next few weeks will be the talk of the town.

A Novel Way
....To Fame

[Original.]

Miles Barnicourt, an American youth of a timid nature, but a vivid imagination, with which he was fond of picturing himself as a cowboy, bank robber or duelist, after finishing his education went abroad for a trip. He told his friend before leaving that he was glad to go to a country where gentlemen settled their differences in a gentlemanly way. If he was not properly treated while abroad he could get redress without resorting to a police court.

This meant that he would pick a quarrel with some person before he returned, and he did. One evening at a cafe he noticed a very modest looking man dining alone. Barnicourt in endeavoring to make known his wants to the French waiter called forth a smile from the gentleman mentioned. It occurred to the young aspirant for dueling honors that this would be a good opportunity to show his grit. In broken French he asked the man what he was laughing at, making a mixture of verbs, nouns and particles that called forth a second smile, more pronounced than the first. Whereupon Barnicourt seized a glass, doused the stranger with the wine it contained and then produced his card. The stranger removed the wine from his face with his napkin, then drew his card and presented it to the American, at the same time saying in very fair English: "A friend of mine will call upon you at 11 o'clock tonight. I trust you will be at home." Barnicourt said that he would, and the stranger went with his dinner.

Barnicourt took the card to an American, Charles Maubray, a permanent resident of Paris, to whom he had brought a letter of introduction. He was narrating the episode when his friend exclaimed:

"Great heavens, man! You've insulted Jacques Verdriller, the most noted duelist in Paris."

Barnicourt paled. Maubray asked him if he were expert with the pistol, the sword, indeed any weapon which they might choose for the combat. But Barnicourt declared that he could only use the pistol and that fairly well.

"This won't do," said Maubray. "You can't fight Verdriller; he would make mince meat of you in no time. But how in the world am I to get you out of it? My friend Perkins, from whom you brought me your letter, would never forgive me if I let you get killed."

"Can't I apologize?" faltered Barnicourt.

"Apologize! And have it known tomorrow in all the clubs of Paris that an American—a friend of mine—insulted a man and apologized because he feared to die. Never!"

Barnicourt turned several shades whiter than before, and Maubray, telling him to remain till his return, went to Barnicourt's lodgings to receive the challenge. At 11:30 he returned and said it was to be pistols, near Verdriller's, the next morning at 6 o'clock.

Maubray went out, and Barnicourt did not see him again till 4 o'clock, when he drove up to the house in a carriage in company with a young doctor. Barnicourt's legs would scarcely carry him to the carriage, and once there he lay back on the cushion like a corpse, while the doctor gave Maubray an account of Verdriller's last duel, at which he (the doctor) was present, and how Verdriller had killed his man. Barnicourt moaned, and the two men looked at him as much as to say, "He's going to show the white feather." When they reached the ground and alighted Maubray whispered to Barnicourt: "Courage. They are there, as I hoped. Keep up your pluck."

This stiffened the drooping man, and they proceeded to join the others. Three men were in earnest conversation with Verdriller. Verdriller was endeavoring evidently to convince them that he was in no danger, for he was heard to say, "They are not duelists in America, and I can pierce a five franc piece at a hundred yards."

"What is that?" interrupted Maubray. "No duelists in America? That's in the north. My principal comes from the south, where the revolver is as common as a house key."

This had the effect to cause the strangers to renew their protestations. Verdriller seemed very much troubled.

"You should help me, Mr. Maubray," he said, "instead of standing in my way. I owe these gentlemen altogether some 12,000 francs, and they having in some way got wind of this affair insist on payment before I expose my life. Bah! What risk do I run?"

"These gentlemen are the best judges of that," replied Maubray carelessly. "I can only say to you, M. Verdriller, that if you expect an easy conquest over my principal you are mistaken. The revolver has been his plaything since childhood."

This brought on more protestations from the strangers and hot words from Verdriller. Finally Maubray said:

"This is an unnecessary affair. May we not settle it? Why, M. Verdriller, did you laugh at my principal?"

"His French was absurd."

"Was that all? A simple statement to that effect will lead my principal to excuse your laughing. He does not pretend to speak French."

"Go and ask him!" requested the three creditors.

Verdriller neither assented nor dissent. Maubray brought back a conciliatory message, and it was agreed that the affair should be called off. All returned to Paris, and the next day there was great curiosity to see the American who had gone out with M. Jacques Verdriller and returned unharmed.

SHIPS BUILT BY SAVAGES.

South Sea Islanders Who Are Expert Workmen in Marine Architecture.

In the Marshall group of Islands in the South seas is a little atoll of coral known as Likiep atoll. It is hundreds of miles away from any other Island and the natives go half naked like the other dwellers of the South seas. But they have learned one great civilized art, just the same, and that is the art of building ships, says the Washington Post.

About 40 years ago a Portuguese sailor was landed there from a whaling ship. When his vessel sailed away he remained behind, for the lazy charm of the Pacific island life had tempted him and he had decided to leave the restless sea and live the rest of his days on the warm, sleepy beaches, where no one worked.

Soon he married the daughter of a chief and became a trader. After many years an American captain visited the islands during a trading voyage in the South seas and when his vessel shortly afterward became unseaworthy he set to work on the beach to build a new one.

The Portuguese whaler's two sons helped him and learned great deal about the operation. The Island had fine, hard wood on it, just the kind of timber that shipbuilders value because it will not rot or waterlog readily. The captain at last succeeded in finishing a good 40-ton schooner and sailed away in her.

Before long the two boys had begun to teach the natives something of what they had picked up and soon, instead of the primitive canoes and dugouts that the Marshall Islanders have been using for centuries, the folk of the Likiep atoll began to build canoes made of carefully fashioned lumber and pinned together with rivets.

Now there is a real shipyard on this little speck lost in the wide Pacific. A high roof under the palms on the beach greets the mariner and when he lands he sees vessels, modern tools lying around and everything looking just as it does in a shipyard anywhere on the American coast, only instead of workmen in overalls he sees dark natives with hardly any clothing.

The wood from which the knees and timbers are cut comes from an Island on the western side of the lagoon. It is called laeao and is extremely handsome, looking much like black walnut. It has the valuable property of growing harder as it grows older and makes fine vessels.

Tools—all of them of the best kind—wood for spars, etc., are shipped to Likiep atoll now from New Zealand and the boats that are turned out in the savage island have been compared with American and English built vessels that have touched at the place and found to be excellent in every respect.

The savage shipbuilders have a queer scale of prices. If a chief wants a schooner of, say, 12 tons, built for him, they charge him $1,000 for it, but if a poorer person wants the same kind of a vessel they will charge many hundreds dollars less. They do this quite openly and explain it by saying that the chief being rich can afford to pay more than a poor person for the same thing.

THE "PRINCES" IN WAR.

Comparison of the Bonfires with Royal Heroes in the German Armies.

Bismarck throughout the Franco-Prussian war grumbled at "the princes" who commanded under Prussian leadership, says London Truth. "The princes have taken all the comfortable lodgings," "the princes drink up the fine wines," "the caterers for the princes carry of the best joints from the butchers and the best vegetables and fruits from the green grocers," "the princes are a cause of constant friction and embarrassment."

Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern's baggage, as described in a French paper, reminds me of Bismarck's growls. His royal highness, who is brother-in-law of the German empress, wanted to take to the farthest east 500 boxes or trunks, bales mostly bulky and weighty.

Prince Kilkoff, director of railways, is said to have turned pale on receiving a letter from Prince Leopold's secretary. In his embarrassment he appealed to the czar for guidance, reminding respectfully his majesty that Russian officers could only take a single box and a hand bag.

After an exchange of telegrams between St. Petersburg and Berlin, Emperor William decided that his cousin could do with 50 boxes and bales. Members of the imperial Japanese family are on the same footing as other officers, and put up with the eternal rice cake and handful of dried fish.

The marriage broker is a regular institution. In their offices there are books with the names and particulars of all the marriageable girls, rich or poor, who live in the district, and the brokers go about endeavoring to arrange engagements in exactly the same way as they would do ordinary trading business. It depends entirely upon their success whether they receive any payment for their efforts or not.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, December 9, 1864.—Persons willing to work slippers for the Feedman's fair will find material ready by calling on Mrs. Wm. Tallman, cloth having been donated by Joseph Bostwick, Esq.

The members of the Water Witch Company No. 2 are requested to meet at their engine house tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock. Business of importance will be presented. A. D. Stoddard, clerk.

A Good Thing to Do.—Some of the boys from this office took a lively turn last night at a woman's woodpile, whose husband is under Sherman in the great expedition. They sawed it up in short metre and their example is worthy of imitation by other young men who need a little healthy exercise to keep their blood pure.

Almost a Fire.—A fire was discovered yesterday afternoon in the paint shop under Hammond's saloon on Milwaukee street, which but for its timely finding out would very likely have proved disastrous. It appears that a paint bucket had been stuck in an unoccupied stove hole in the room occupied as a paint shop, and the soon which had dropped down had been ignited by the fire above, and in turn set the keg on fire, which would have communicated to the combustible material in the room. It was a lucky discovery.

Starting Information.—Editors Gazette: The following communication was duly received this morning. As all good citizens are concerned in the same I feel it my duty to give it publicly. You will therefore please give it a place in your columns this evening that the inhabitants may be on their guard. Public measures have been taken to guard against the threatened danger.

Very respectfully yours, JOHN MITCHELL.

Janesville, Dec. 9, 1864.

Mr. L. J. Williams, 169 W. Milwaukee St.

Dear Sir: Upon consultation with the mayor of this city I feel it my duty bound to inform you that from circumstances and proof which we consider in a manner reliable, an attempt has been made to fire the principal cities of the state. Yours was mentioned in the program. The night of Dec. 10th is fixed upon.

This has been visited of late by sundry cut-throats and hard-looking toughs, and they are here for no good purpose. Some arrests have been made and some have left the city. We have appointed a special police on this account. Yours, etc., W. S. Yarin, Sheriff.

CRIMINALS SELDOM CHANGE

Seem to Stick to One Line of Crime, No Matter How Often They Are Caught.

"Criminals seem to be the strongest kind of fatalists," remarked Judge Neff, of Pittsburgh, recently. Judge Neff is widely known as an authority on criminology, and his long experience as prosecutor, judge and lawyer has given him unusual opportunity of studying scientifically the causes and characteristics of crime.

"I have noticed that when a criminal is arrested after finishing one sentence, the second charge is generally the result of a crime almost exactly the same as the one which first got him into trouble. It seems like a strange kind of fatality. I've known instances where one criminal has been arrested and punished five or six times on charges exactly the same.

"What makes them do it? I'm not sure

I can explain it satisfactorily, but I know it to be the case. It has occurred to me, and possibly this is the simplest explanation, that the reason for a criminal's adhering strictly to one line of work, is the same as the fascination which holds a gambler to a table although luck is against him.

"Each failure or each loss shows the victim a point which he has hitherto been ignorant of, and it is easy to convince himself that next time he will escape that mistake.

"And so it goes. Ever the next time, just one more chance, and then another, ever confident that the luck must change and that each turn of the wheel leaves him just that much better equipped and that much more likely to win, finally. Then, there is the desperation, the unconscious and gritty determination to make a success of the thing.

"If he fail, and is arrested, convicted and punished, the process of the law simply goes to show him wherein his first job was bungling and poorly carried out. The first feeling of resignation that follows the bitterness of punishment is when he tells himself that next time he will not repeat the error which led to his detection on the present occasion. No sooner is he out of the penitentiary than he essayes again to try his luck, this time carefully avoiding the mistake which first brought him to grief.

"It is a well-known fact that no criminal, no matter how expert or how daring, can cover up all his tracks. The very best of them will leave at least one loophole, will commit, at least one error which eventually fastens the guilt on him. The poorer criminals leave clues according to their skill or experience. So our imaginary crook, the second time he plans a job, while he carefully avoids a repetition of his first error, is almost sure to make some other one. And so on, each succeeding crime and detection pointing out to him the lines of his weakness, so that he is irresistibly led onward to his destruction."

SETTING HENS ON WATCH.

Unique Scheme of Minnesota Man for Breaking Biddy's Bad Habits.

Timothy Varney, who lives three miles east of Le Sueur, and keeps about 200 hens, has been greatly troubled, as have most people who keep hens, by the persistent desire manifested by the fowls to sit, in season and out, on eggs, stones or door knobs, or anything else that comes handy. But he has got hold of a plan now, says a recent report, which he has quietly tried with perfect success, and which he warrants will cure the worst light Brahma chick that ever vexed the heart of man of all desire to sit, and all in less than three hours.

The cure consists of a cheap watch, with a loud and clear tick, inclosed in a case that is white and shaped like an egg. When the hen manifests a desire to sit out of season, he gently places this bogus egg under her sheltering breast, and the egg does the rest. It ticks cheerfully away, and soon the hen begins to show signs of uneasiness and sits the noisy egg around with her bill, thinking, perhaps, that it is already time for it to hatch, and there is a chicken in it wanting to get out. She grows more and more nervous as the noise keeps up, and soon jumps off the nest and runs around awhile to cool off, but returns again to her self-imposed duty. It gets worse and worse with her, and she wriggles about and cackles, ruffles her feathers and looks wild, until at last, with a frenzied squawk, she abandons the nest for good and all. That incubating fever is broken up completely.

Mr. Varney finds use for half a dozen of these noisy eggs, and claims that they pay for their cost over and over during the year by keeping the hens at the business of laying, and not permitting them to waste the golden hours in useless incubating.

Laboratory and Gold Mine.

Prof. S. L. Bigelow, of the University of Michigan, made a happy comparison in a recent lecture on the "Modern Laboratory." Once it was easy for the student and investigator in chemistry to hit upon new things, just as ones the treasure-seeker in the Rocky mountains needed no apparatus but a pan to wash gold out of the bed of a stream.

But now, precisely like the wandering gold-seeker with his pan has given place to the costly installation of mining machinery, which extracts the precious metal from the bowels of the mountains, so the lucky discoverer who could enrich science by simply keeping his eyes open while scratching the surface has been succeeded by patient delvers, who must go deep, and who can make no progress without the elaborate and expensive equipment of a first-class laboratory.

Superior Telegram: Pastor Wagner, the author of "A Simple Life," demands $200 per night for his lecture. It must be that it costs quite a large amount of money to live the simple life.

Winter Racing Now On

Scene of Turf Action Now
Shifts to "Pastures New."

Prospects at New Orleans --- The California
Tracks, Etc. --- Review of 1904.

Judging from what may be seen on the surface, never were prospects for what is termed winter racing so bright as at present.

In California the Oakland season recently opened with heat, and 10,000 people passed through the turnstiles on the inaugural day. Fifteen bookmakers were in line.

The old established courses will have all the horses they can handle, and the new recruits will certainly not go lacking where good management has given or is likely to give satisfaction to the great racing crowd of horsemen.

New Orleans especially will have a very large complement of good horses considerably above even the good class of recent years, and, although there is appearance of the new organization starting in the new year, it does not seem probable that it will seriously affect the good business record of the older Crescent City Jockey club.

In California the Ingleside, Tumforan and Oakland meetings get the cream of the horses going to the coast, and the matter of attractive races and attractive purses will never be neglected by President Tom Williams, as those who remember the "war" of some years ago and the blust calling bluff culminating in the extinction of the opposition will readily understand.

President Williams has to date practically no opposition worth considering west of the Rockies, and Time and his experienced management will show what he has to fear in the future.

Hot Springs under its new surroundings is undoubtedly running very high, and it would surely be idle to doubt its success if the plans of those at the head are duly carried to completion. With the accession of Mr. Condon to the management there goes not only the weight of capital, experience, etc., but also the faith and trust of a very large clientele which for years has been building up in Illinois.

To look back a few years, glancing closely into the racing surroundings of the winter tracks in those days and then passively contrasting them with the winter racing now offered the public, the change is really marvelous, with the evident possibilities that the development of good, undoubtedly good, is by no means exhausted.

In recalling the eastern turf season which recently closed a feeling of content and complete satisfaction is plainly apparent. Under the wise and able control of the Jockey club the sport has prospered and clearly reached its high water mark. It has been unusually free from scandal and hurtful influence.

It has been a source of constant pleasure to thousands; it has satisfied and pleased. Its reading makes a bright and interesting chapter, for never before have there been so many new records, so many stirring contests, so many brilliant performers. The names of Beldame, Irish Lad, Hermis, Stalwart, Ort Wells, Delhi, Broomstick, Artful, Tradition, Sysonby, Olseau and Tanyu are names to conjure with. They are names synonymous with all that is commanding and great in the way of thoroughbreds. They recall battles bravely fought and gallantly won.

The breeding industry, too, has grown and developed, and all records have been broken in the matter of attendance. Altogether it has been a season remarkable in its beginning and successful to its end.

In a short review of the season it is interesting to compare the leading thoroughbreds. Beldame, the horse of the year, the champion of her race and the greatest mare ever raced in this country, not excepting the speedy Adoration, the black whizwind Imp or the great Friend, has won $53,250. She does not lead the list in the matter of winnings—her opportunities were not so great—but in every other respect she has no superiors, and few, if any, equals. Beaten only twice in fourteen starts, and then by such horses as Irish Lad and Hermis, and under a handicap each time, her record is practically unbroken.

She met all comers of her own age, including the mighty Stalwart, and she triumphed in a way that left no doubt.

Delhi, James R. Keene's speedy Ben Brush three-year-old, heads the list of the money winners of the year, with the amazing total of $75,910. When one horse can win such an amount it is little wonder that the buying of yearlings has such a fascination. He came to hand early and won the historic Withers and Belmont stakes at Morris Park, N. Y., in the spring, and then after a slight illness, which probably deprived him of some victories, went to Saratoga and won the Great Republic stakes of $50,000, beating, among others, Mercury, the Picket and Waterboy, and the Saratoga Derby, beating Stalwart just as good that year as he did him.

In the fall Delhi trained off, and Stalwart earned full revenge and incidentally the honors of his age, with the exception of Beldame, by his sterling victories in the Century stakes, in which he beat Ort Wells, Sharthouse, Major Daingerfield and Delhi, and later in the Annual Champion stakes and Hindoo stakes, in which he beat Broomstick and others. Stalwart is a son of Medller and by winning a total of $54,830 added in placing his sire at the head of the winning stallion list.

Next to Delhi, John A. Drake's Ort Wells was the biggest winner of the year, his victories netting $23,335. This brilliant son of King Erie—Tea's Over was for a long time the acknowledged champion of his age. His principal triumphs were in the Commonwealth handicap, in which he beat The Picket and Irish Lad, and the Lawrence Realization stakes and Brighton Derby.

Broomstick, the sturdy little son of Ben Brush—Elf, won $38,035. His most notable success was in the Brighton handicap, when in a grueling drive he beat Irish Lad a head on the post, making a world's record for one mile.

Find Ex-Convict's Dead Body.
Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 9.—The body of Welcome Davidson, aged 65, an ex-convict of the Lincoln penitentiary, was found in a field near Foster, Neb. The dead man's face was horribly gashed and his feet were entangled in straps.

BROOMSTICK, HALF-BROTHER TO DELHI, and a quarter of 2:02 4-5. It was a brilliant performance, though fraught with some regret, as Irish Lad broke down a few strides from the finish and pulled up on three legs, so Jane that it was necessary to retire him permanently.

Broomstick won other races, and was popular for his big heart and true courage; but, all other races aside, he earned in the Brighton handicap a fame that will be lasting.

Highball, winner of the American Derby, and whose untimely death robbed the turf of one of its brightest stars, won $23,000.

FIVE MILE CHAMPION.

John J. Daly, Irish Runner, Now Holder of American Title. The champion runner of Ireland, John J. Daly, is now the five mile champion of the United States. Daly recently won the title at Celtic park, Long Island City, N. Y., from John J. Joyce of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association.

At the start Joyce took the lead, which he held for the first mile. Joyce was running lightly and with very little apparent effort, whereas Daly, even at the end of the first mile, judging by his labored, heavy stride, gave one the impression that he could not last the distance.

At no time was Daly more than a yard behind Joyce. The first mile was run in 5 minutes and 3 seconds. Daly had apparently mapped out a plan of action for the first part of the race. As soon as they had passed the mile stake Daly shot ahead and set the pace throughout the four laps, doing the second mile in 5 minutes and 22 seconds. Daly held his lead for three laps of the last mile, doing each of these circuits two seconds faster than the one previous.

In the home stretch Daly gained inch by inch until a scant three feet separated the two. It was a grueling 100 yards to the tape, Daly holding his scant lead and winning by a yard. One of the features of the race was that at no time during the running did more than three feet separate the runners.

COUNTY NEWS

AFTON.

Afton, Dec. 9.—Growing congregations are greeting Rev. C. J. Eddy at the Baptist church, on Sunday afternoons, and a better interest is manifest in various departments of church work. The Sunday school will hold a Christmas tree entertainment at the church, as usual, Saturday evening, December 24th, being the date selected. At the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting next Sunday evening, the semi-annual election of officers will be held and this, with the appointment of new committees, will reawaken interest in the work of this society, which has only recently resumed the holding of regular meetings. The Ladies' Aid society, recently organized with fifteen members, continues to grow, both in numbers and influence. The next meeting of this society will be held with Mrs. Marvin A. Hayner, Wednesday, December 14th, at ten o'clock a. m., and all members are urged to attend.

District Deputy F. A. Thornton, of Beloit, accompanied by two other members of Beloit Camp No. 348, M. W. A., attended the regular meeting of Afton Camp No. 212, held last Saturday evening and assisted their Afton neighbors in planning for the opening of an active campaign for new members. A resolution was adopted re-opening the camp charter and William Brinkman was appointed local deputy to have charge of the work. All members of the camp are requested to be present at the next regular meeting, which will be held Saturday evening, December 17th, for business of importance, including the election of officers for the ensuing year, will be considered and any plans for advancing the interests of the camp, which may be introduced by members, will be discussed and proper action taken. Afton camp did not lose a member by reason of the recent readjustment of rates and with the splendid record made by the society during the past year, it seems reasonable to look for a sturdy advance, both in members and interest, during the winter here at Afton.

The Loyal Americans of Afton Assembly No. 946, are well pleased over the success attending their first social venture, the box social given by them at Brinkman's hall last Thursday evening having proven both pleasant and profitable. Twenty-seven boxes, each containing supper for two, had been prepared by the ladies present and these were sold at public auction to the highest bidders. Norman Floyd Miller playing the role of auctioneer, with Will R. McCrea acting as clerk. When the last box had been sold and all buyers had "cashed in," the general fund of the society was found to be just $21.50 better off than when the sale began. This society will hold its annual election of officers at the next regular meeting to be held Thursday evening, December 15. A debate is also being prepared and these two features will serve to make the coming meeting one of interest to all members.

Miss Cicely Enos, of Beloit, was the guest of Mrs. U. G. White at luncheon Tuesday.

County Superintendent O. D. Antisdell, and our local teachers, Principal W. H. Denoyer and Miss Ethel E. Soper, were in attendance at the meeting of the Rock County Teachers' Association held at Beloit last Saturday.

U. G. White has been on the sick list but is better at this writing.

Mrs. Mary J. Harding has been quite ill for a few days but is now convalescent.

Will R. McCrea transacted business in Beloit Thursday.

The skating season on Bass Creek has opened and Afton young people are enjoying the sport each evening.

ARE YOU SICK?

If so, where?
Headache?
Dry, hacking cough?
Four tongue?
Loss of appetite?
Lack of energy?
Pain in stomach?
Bowels?
General weakness?

These are but a few of the signs of indigestion.

Some others are: Wind in the stomach or bowels; constipation or diarrhea; pale complexion; spots before the eyes; dizziness; loss of flesh; irritability; sleeplessness; nervousness.

All these symptoms will plague and torment you, and will never permanently leave you, once you suffer from them; only are sure, in time, to get worse, if not treated by the best known scientific method of cure—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

These curative tablets are composed of ingredients which modern knowledge of the true inward processes of digestion approve of, as forming the best, safest, surest and most scientific combination of medicinal drugs, that can be used to relieve all the conditions of ill-health brought on by this much-dreaded disorder.

A disease so "protein" or changeable in its manifestations, assuming so many forms, characterized by so many different symptoms that, more times than not, it is mistaken for some other disease altogether, and the poor patient may die, or at best allow the seeds of permanent, chronic sickness, to germinate and take root in his system.

So it is a real danger we ask you to avoid, when we say: In case of doubt, take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Even if disordered digestion is not the real cause of your sickness (which, probably, though it is), yet your digestion is nearly certain to be out of order, and if allowed to remain so will seriously complicate your sickness for you.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, then, will be sure to do you good, and will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking.

They will help to make your food make you strong, and thus, if in no other way, help you back to health by helping your system to throw off disease like a healthy duck shakes water off its back.

Shake off your sickness with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A POLICEMAN'S STORY

Officer Daniel J. Carey Prevents Pneumonia by Using Father John's Medicine.

I went home one night and my throat and lungs were all filled up and I could hardly breathe. They told me that if I did not get relief at once I would have pneumonia, and I dreaded that because of my great weight.

I took Father John's Medicine and it eased my throat and lungs at once, and prevented a bad case of pneumonia. I took it right along and got much relief for chronic catarrh and bronchial trouble, for which I had been unable to get any help from the best doctors in Lawrence, and all kinds of medicines that I have tried for fifteen years. I am recommending it to all policemen on the force and many of them are taking it with much benefit. I wish everybody knew of its merits. (Signed) Daniel J. ## PLAYING THE SPY

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

While Sheridan and Early were facing each other in the Shenandoah valley a Federal soldier named Sid Davis was sent into the lines of the latter to secure information. He took with him a peddler's pack and claimed to be a civilian and a resident of Virginia, and his excuse for not being in the Confederate army was that he was physically incapacitated by heart disease. On penetrating the enemy's lines he was taken before General Early, who questioned him at length and seemed satisfied with his answers. As he left the tent, however, he encountered a private soldier who was lying in wait for him and who shook a fist in his face and said:

"Say, Yank, yo' fooled the general, but yo' can't play it over me. Yo' are a doggated Yankee spy, and I'll prove it before yo' leave camp!"

The Confederate was a rough specimen of the soldier, having a saber cut across his face and an aggressive manner of speech, but why he should display such malvolence toward a stranger Sid could not make out.

"Are you drunk, or what, that you call me a Yankee spy?" blustered Sid as three or four of the man's comrades came up and seemed inclined to make trouble.

"No, I'm not drunk, and I saw yo' in the Union camp at Charlestown last spring when I was a prisoner of war there," was the answer.

"Nonsense, man. If you have got any charges to make against me, go to the general. If he is satisfied that I am all right, it's not for you to kick."

"Say yo' yo' are a Yankee spy, and I'll prove it and have yo' hung," growled the man as he and his comrades scattered off.

Sid picked up his pack and found a place to lodge and next morning began peddling his goods through the camp. The rest of his adventures he told in his own language:

"By haggling with customers over prices, and by hanging to the goods as long as possible, I made them last two days. In that time I had made close figures on every branch of Early's command, and had also got a good idea of the strength of his position. I had secured all I came for and was ready to return and report, but officers stopped me by the dozen to send messages to friends in Washington or ask that I make purchases for them. I was handed upwards of $5,000 in Confederate money, and though I would have no chance to return it, it was no gain to me. The whole sum would not have purchased a bottle of ginger ale or a Union sweater.

"As to the man with the saber cut, I had seen him two or three times during the two days, and I knew that he was trying his best to work up a suspicion against me. Some of the soldiers asked me a few questions, but most of them were satisfied that I was what I claimed to be. I learned that the man went to General Early and stated his case, but as I was not sent for the general could not have taken much stock in what he said.

"I had intended to creep out of the Confederate lines in the darkness of night, but observing that the camp sentinels and pickets had been doubled and was met with such good luck in playing my role, I decided to go to the general and ask for a regular pass. I did not find him, but his adjutant general promptly handed me the paper, and just as sunset on the second day I left by the same road I had entered. I had no writing of any sort about me, and if stopped and searched there was nothing to incriminate. What information I had secured was all carried in my memory, and I had no fear of forgetting any of it.

"No one questioned the pass until I came to the last picket post. There were four men on this post, and one of them was his of the saber cut. As he realized that I was escaping his clutches he threw his hat on the ground and shouted:

"I don't keer if he has a hundred passes! I tell yo' he is a Yankee soldier and a spy, and dod rot him he can't git by me!"

"The other three men, one of whom was a corporal, protested that they had no right to stop me, as the pass was all right and not to be questioned at any post, and I spoke softly in hopes of placating the man, but he grew still more fierce and handled his musket menacingly and shouted:

"He's shorly got to go back to camp with me. I kin tell the general how to trap him. About face and forward march or I'll put a bullet into yo'!"

"Of course I refused to go back, and in this I was stoutly supported by the three others, two of whom had purchased goods of me the day before and been very friendly over it. They argued and protested, and just when I was hoping that the man with the scur would calm down he suddenly drew up his musket with the intention of shooting me in my tracks. As the weapon came up one of the men sprang forward and struck it upward, and another seized the man. Just how it was done I could not follow, but the musket was discharged, and the heavy ball struck the fellow under the chin and tore the greater part of his face away. He was dead in thirty seconds, and his comrades were bending over his body with looks of horror on their faces when I hurried away down the road. Had they insisted on my going back to camp with them and aiding them to make the tragedy clear to the officer of the day I should no doubt have fallen under suspicion and perhaps met the fate meted out to spies."

Now for the Holiday Selling

It is hard to know just where to begin. It will be equally hard to know just where to stop. There are so many things to talk about; good things, useful things, ornamental things; things that we have been carefully selecting for months past to make this holiday equipment second to none.

The store has donned its Christmas dress. The goods are all displayed to the best advantage for easy choosing; nothing has been neglected or overlooked. We are ready for the great throng of gift buyers, and we want to say right here that we have never been more completely, more enthusiastically ready than now.

Handsome Furs for Christmas Gifts

There's a special showing of Furs, all bought for Christmas gifts. The popular shapes made of the most popular skins. You should investigate these.

Suit Pieces—They are in strong demand and make excellent presents. Beautiful suit pieces in gray squirrel, mink, marten, beaver, mole skin. A $5.00 Scarf of Isabella dyed Opossum we consider extra good value. Plenty of them now. From $18 to $45 we show an assortment of Isabella Scarfs, the choicest pieces from many large lines, beautifully blended, fine soft skins. A $10 Scarf of dyed marten, large double scarf, is a winner. Quantity limited. Blue Fox Sets—Gray Lynx Scarfs—pretty novelties for Holiday selling. Misses' and Children's Sets—many taking things that give pleasure to the young folks.

Nearseal Jackets--

We make a specialty of Fur Jackets of Nearseal and our line receives many compliments. Women who have been to Chicago and Milwaukee returned and bought here, satisfied that ours were better. Easy to prove our statements. There are many poor jackets in the market and many women get taken in every winter.

Electric Seals, $25 to $35.

WE KEEP THE QUALITY UP.

THE HENRI QUATRE SHAPE

All of the historical prints and pictures are being consulted for inspiration as to styles, and it is notable how many of them owe their revival to French sources. Fashioned from black velvet, the historic Henri Quatre hat, copied from the paintings of that monarch and his court, is one of the leading styles for the younger generation. The crown is large, round and medium high, narrowing somewhat toward the top, and the broad brim is curved in saucer shape all around. The crown fits comfortably to the shape of the head without the intervention of the bandage, black satin ribbon is looped into bows and simulates an agrafe to hold the nodding white plumes in place. The ribbon is carried around the crown, and the brim is silt close to the crown in the back, and the long tie strings slipped through.

REFLECTIONS.

Economy is half the struggle.

One does not have to wait to be forced to prove that he is not a wolf.

A happy, smiling, cheery face pays much of the fare in the journey of life.

The less we speak of our personal virtues, the more conspicuous they appear.

The value of a man's principles depends on what it costs him to cast them in practice.

It's a good deal easier to sit up straight in church than it is to walk upright in the world.

Never trust a person who looks at you out of the sides of his eyes. Of course, he actually is here meant, and not once, in a while.

The white of the eyes showing beneath the iris denotes cool deliberation, while those in which the upper lid passes horizontally across the pupil tell of decided mental ability.

Perhaps the most beautiful color for eyes is violet, a tint seen fairly often in the eyes of young children and kittens, but seldom preserved in mature years, though Irish persons have more than their share of this especial beauty.—Exchange.

A SPINSTER SAYS THAT—
Wise men get a lot of free instruction from fools.

An ounce of cranberry sauce is better than a pound of wind pudding.

The man with a narrow mind usually makes up for it in the length of his arguments.

It is better for a man to do a little kicking than to deteriorate into a human football.

All men who have long hair are not poets; some of them haven't the price of a hair cut.

Many a man who prays for his daily bread has to hustle for his Thanksgiving turkey.

Poets, like hens, are continually chanting their lays—but the Thanksgiving turkey has no chance.

If you think you resemble a great man, say nothing. The resemblance is very apt to cease the moment you open your mouth.

Poverty has one advantage over wealth. When a poor man is sick there is no desire on the part of his physician to prolong the illness.

LANGUAGE OF THE EYES.

A melancholy temperament and blue eyes are a conjunction scarcely ever to be met with.

Eyes with long, sharp corners indicate the possession of great discernment and penetration.

Upturned eyes are typical of devotion, and wide-open orbs tell us that their owner is of a rash disposition.

Gray eyes which turn green with anger or excitement show that their possessor has a choleric temperament.

Brown eyes are said to be the strongest, though, again, those very pale blue eyes are the ones having mesmeric power.
